REMEMBERING THOSE WE'VE LOST
JULY - SEPTEMBER 2020

San Antonio Express-News

Obituaries through the paper have been, and continues to be, an important part of how families spread the news of a loved one. An obituary may be the only time that person's name ever appears in the paper, and it is through that obituary that a lasting record of a person's life is written.

Readers care about obituaries because the featured people on the page were their friends and neighbors, former classmates, fellow church members, or people who played vital roles in the community.

Tributes offers a true value to families and funeral directors.

Tips for turning history into your story

FamilyHistory

START A FAMILY TREE
Starting a family tree can be the next step to learning about your family history. Building out your tree online can be simple with a service like Ancestry which has been turning history into your story by connecting names into family and distant places into homes in more than three decades. With more than 20 billion records and 3 million family history subscribers, the service provides all the information and tools you need in one place to make discovery fun and easy. Enter what you know about yourself, your parents, your brothers and sisters then add your grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins. If you aren't sure about dates and places, make an educated guess then upload photos and stories.

CALL YOUR FAMILY
In almost every family there is someone who knows all about the familial tree and history. You might be unsure of the exact date your grandparents were married, but someone else may know. Building knowledge of your family history can be an exciting recall your mom, your grandma or even your great aunt. They likely have stories and photos you don't have and would likely be willing to share them.

MESSAGE COUSINS
As you continue to explore your family tree, you may find other relatives have already researched photos and parts of your family tree. Maybe a fourth cousin has your common great-grandparents in their tree with photos and stories about their lives. Find out what other information they might know or share what you know about your branch of the family tree.

TAKE A DNA TEST
DNA testing has revolutionized the way people discover family history. With a service like AncestryDNA, you become part of a genetic network that includes more than 10 million people. In addition to providing ethnicity estimates, the service also compares your DNA to the people in the network and matches you to anyone sharing enough DNA. With you to points to a recent common ancestor within the last eight to 10 generations. To make those connections even easier to find, search that family tree you built to your DNA results, and find more information at Ancestry.com.

In Memoriam Listings

Welcome

We are pleased to present our premier edition of Tributes. This is our special section that includes listings of community members who were featured in the Obituaries section of the San Antonio Express-News between July 1 - September 30, 2020. The notice will feature the following information (if provided): photo, name, city of residence, birth date, date of passing and the funeral home that handled the services.

We publish this to remember those who have passed away and create a keepsake for the loved ones who remain.

You can look at the guestbook featured on legacy.com/obituaries/sanantonio for your loved one to remind you of the love and support you received during this difficult time. This guestbook lives on our site in perpetuity.

We hope you will take time to remember those who were lost and join us in a celebration of life. The next publication date will be January 10, 2021.
